

Courts and Justice

	Courthouses provide a neutral place where people solve disputes.
Judges run the courtroom and make decisions about the law.
	The gavel is used to call everyone to order in the courtroom.
Witnesses promise to tell the truth by taking an oath before they testify.

Courts and Justice

Jurors listen to the evidence in court.

Attorneys study the law to help people with legal problems.

The symbol shows the idea that “justice is blind”, meaning that justice is based on the facts and the law, not on who people are or what they look like.

Judges keep up with changes in the law.
